DENISON'S SHORE BERTH.

It was Denison's second berth ashore, for he soon tired of the sea. The first was not a success, and when he humped his way into Cocktown his brother the banker, Aubrey Denison, Esq., and Aubrey Denison's wife told him he would come to a bad end. So Denison went and lodged at a boarding house kept by a Chinaman and he was smugled upon by a Chinaman's pretty half-caste daughter, Sun Sun Fat. His conduct at least amused his sister-in-law, who was the leading lady in Cocktown, society, and that pleased him. But he had to do something, and at last he managed to secure the position of proof-reader on the North Queensland Tropic, &c. He had no experience of proof-reading, but Sun Sun Fat taught him one of her husband's best tricks, and a little while afterwards when he applied for the post. Clean shirts being an anomaly in Cocktown journalistic circles, he was engaged on the spot, and told to come on duty at eight in the evening. He was to ask for Mr Pinkham, who would show him what to do.

Where is Mr Pinkham? asked Denison at eight p.m., when an exceedingly dirty small boy brought him his first proof. 'He's tanked. An' he says he ain't again' to help you read no proofs. And most all the copy is tanked, too. He's a tanked fellow, but the intelligent assistance of the boy, Denison managed to pull through that night, with the following result in the 'Intercolonial' Telegrams column:—
Melbourne, August 13.—The body of an elderly boat man found last night floating down the Yarra, with its throat cut. It was dressed in a grey tweed suit with a flannel shirt, dressed in a grey tweed suit with a flannel shirt. This morning a girl said the deceased was her father, &c.

A few lines further down in the same column was the intelligence that 'Chin Choo Hing, Hingtham, of Victoria, had sentenced the man Power to imprisonment for the term of his natural term.' When Denison turned up next evening the editor asked him in distinctly cold tones if he 'had read the paper.' Denison said he had not—he was too tired. Then the editor pointed out twenty-nine hideous mistakes, all underlined in blue pencil and on a par with the two above-mentioned. Denison explained in regard to the word 'next' that he meant 'life,' but there being a 'next' in 'life,' he somehow deleted the entire word, and just then in his zeal, calling out 'next proof,' he unthinkingly wrote 'next' on the proof instead of 'life.' As for the matter of the boat he had no excuse to offer. The editor was not harsh, but said that a man of Denison's intelligence ought to be employed in an editorial hand, stating that he (the editor) had received a number of replies to the circulars he had sent out to the supporters of the Government, &c. In the morning the paragraph appeared:—
'Mr Denison Thompson, has again received quite a large number of replies; &c.'

Of course Mr Thompson was terribly insulted—every one in Cocktown knew that he had periodical illnesses, during which he was chased by large snakes and blue dogs with red eyes—and denominated 'Denison's'—he employed in an editorial hand, stating that he (the editor) had received a number of replies to the circulars he had sent out to the supporters of the Government, &c. In the morning the paragraph appeared:—
'Mr Denison Thompson, has again received quite a large number of replies; &c.'

He worried along pretty well till the end of the week, and then fresh trouble arose. Mr Pinkham, the sub-editor, who did the foreign cables, got exceedingly drunk, and for his own safety, was locked up by the watchful police. The three reporters, who all hated Pinkham, declined to submit their cables, and consequently the editor was himself driven to drink. The business manager, however, took his place, and told Denison that he relied on him to finish with the cables. Denison hinted at increased emoluments, and the manager promptly threatened to sack him and all the rest of the literary staff. He would do the cables himself, he said. He abhorred Denison on account of his and the kummersbund. Just then the Emperor Frederick was dying at San Remo, and cables were coming through via Sydney. At 11 p.m. the business manager came in to Denison and said that they should try to get along amicably. As both the editor and Mr Pinkham were in a deplorable condition he relied upon the rest of the staff to maintain the credit of the Tropic, &c. Then he showed Denison a cable he had just received, and asked him if he could assist him to finish it. It was in this wise:—
'The Emperor Frederick's condition very grave. German physicians hammer Morrell MacKenzie, but approve suggestion operation trachea (only a cough without delay).'

Denison said (with secret joy) that he couldn't help. But he believed that there were two famous ladies in London with names something like Treach and Tony. MacKenzie was, he also remarked, the Latin name for the gullet. And he requested his enemy to rush the cable through as quickly as possible. The business manager said he would—he merely felt a little doubt about the proper spelling of the Italian doctor's name. As he went out he remarked, 'How Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has attained a prominence in this district, and though it has only been introduced a few months it has taken the lead. From remarks made by my customers who have used this remedy, I am convinced that it possesses exceptional qualities. I never hesitate to recommend it to all who are in need of a good cough mixture.'

'The Emperor Frederick'—HERALD'S CONDITION.
'San Remo. The Emperor Frederick's condition is causing grave anxiety. The German physicians in attendance hinder Morrell MacKenzie in every possible way. They, however, agree to his suggestion to send for the two celebrated Italian specialists, Drs Treach and Tony, and with their perform an operation on the Emperor's trachea. What is it? Great. Hides are dull, bank rate unaltered.'

The absolute beauty of the thing, however, to Denison's mind was that the business manager had sent a copy of his translation of the Emperor's coughs to the local papers—run by the Cocktown Labour Union—which had used it word for word. Nothing of moment occurred after this till a report of a coroner by Dr Stanton, the first Bishop of North Queensland, appeared. His Lordship alluding to certain conditions of the human mind which rendered one's judgment 'subject to error and bias,' the intelligent compositor made it 'wags and bias,' and Denison, being very sleepy when he read the proof, let it go. And Dr Stanton, good and generous man, laughed heartily when Denison with a contrite and broken heart called on him and asked for his forgiveness.
But it was not long after that there was a great uproar, when it was reported to the Aubrey Denison in local society and who had just lost his father. The death announcement appeared as follows:—
On June 15, at the Hospital, Cocktown, died Aubrey Denison, Esq., formerly of the Tropic, &c.

ment. Inspector of Artesian Bore for North Queensland, aged sixty-five.
Also at this same time and place five trunks of Victorian hay, some pigs and calves, and twenty six bags of onions and potatoes, all in prime order.
Of course this was the last straw, and Denison was asked to resign. 'But as Mrs Aubrey Denison wrote and said she should like to forgive him for his disgraceful conduct before he went away, he sent the Scotch form of the 'Tropic-Cat' to explain to her that the catch-line of an auctioneer's advertisement had been 'dropped' on the name-galley as the mortuary notice, and overlooked when the form was looked. And after a tender farewell to Sun Sun Fat, Denison went out into the world again to look for a ship. —P. M. G.

DEWEY'S KNIGHTLY FALCHION

With the exception of the steel blade and the body metal of the scabbard, the sword will be entirely of 22-carat gold. On a nominal is carried the name of the battleship.

Olympic and the zodiacal sign for December, the month of Admiral Dewey's birth. Circling these is a closely woven wreath of oak leaves, the standard decoration for naval. Continuing down, the metal work giving the proper form, is a gold collar, on the front of which are the arms of the United States, with the blue field of the shield in enamel, and below them are the arms of Vermont, the admiral's native State; with the motto, 'Freedom and Unity,' and the colors of the shield in enamel. Stars serve to decorate the plain part of the collar, and a graceful finish is given to this part of the hilt by a narrow band of oak leaves. The grip is covered with fine sharkskin, bound with gold wire and inlaid with gold stars.

The guard is composed of a conventional eagle, terminating in a claw clasping the top, indicating control and confidence; the outspread wings form the guard proper.

The expression of this theme is found in the determination, and, while firm still bearing, a message of peace in the laurel wreath held in the beak. The wreath serves as protection, covering the point of the bow and at the same time preserves the proper outlines of the guard.

damaskeened in gold, with sprays of maritimus, a delicate sea plant, signifying fidelity, constancy and remembrance. The sprays are interlaced in the form of a ser of cartouches, with a star in the center

Sprays of oak leaves and acorns assure the rings and trappings of the scabbard, above those, on the front of the scabbard, is raised monogram in brilliants (diamonds) entwining the letters "G. D.," and immediately under them are the letters "U. S. N.," surrounded by sprays of marinus. The ferrule, or lower end of the scabbard, terminates in entwined

The sword-blade is damaskened with inscription :
THE GIFT OF THE NATION TO REAR-ADMIRAL GEORGE GEORGE BEWET, U.S.N., IN MEMORY OF THE VICTORY AT MANILA BAY, MAY 1, 1898.

The letters are of an ornamental character, and sufficiently large to be dignified. The Phœnician galley, representing the craft of the navies of the world, supports the rest of the ornament on this side of

The design for the sword is the work of Paulding Farnham, the chief designer of Tiffany's diamond jewelry manufacturing department. Mr. Farnham is a member of a number of art societies in New York City and Boston, including the National Sculpture Society, where his exhibits of models have elicited much favorable comment.

LATE TELEGRAMS.

RAILWAY COLLISION NEAR MARGHERITTA.
London, October 10.—A train from Cleethorpes to Manchester collided Monday night at Wmghy Junction: some timber projecting from a deranged engine, striking a passenger coach, eight passengers being killed and one injured.

GREAT JEWEL ROBBERY.
The jewels of Mary, Dowager Duchess Sutherland, valued at £25,000, have been stolen in Paris. The Duchess, in starting for Antwerp, placed the case on a seat in railway carriage, remaining near the door. It is believed the thief entered the compartment by the corridor, after tracking under for days.

THE PROOFING.
The Warwickshire Regiment, which has been displaced at Alexandria by the Cretans, has started for India, and not

DIPLOMATIC APPOINTMENTS.
Mr. Russell Roudh has been promoted to be first Secretary at the Cato Agency, THE N.W. FRONTIER.

In an interview with a representative of the Router, Colonel Warburton said we strongly hold the Khaiber at all hazards and it was desirable to establish a post strong enough, to hold out from three to seven days. Sir Robert Warburton indicated the siting of the Khaiber with Mahomedan Indian troops, and calling the Khaiber under direct control of Simla.

CAPT. AFFAIRS.
London, October 12.—Mr. Schreine is dressing the Cape House of Assesment, the Government has decided to maintain friendly relations with Rhodes and also with the sister States, and recognize the independence of the two polities. Mr. Rhodes declared that he would insist upon Government introducing a distribution Bill in the present session.

LORD CURZEN'S STAFF.
Abidabad, Oct. 20.—No further news has reached India regarding Lord Curzen's personal Staff. Major Hon. Charles D. D'Almeida was actually cleared the post of Military Secretary, but was unwilling to return to India.

Lord Roberts and other friends and enormous crowd were at Victoria Station to-day to wish God-speed to Sir William Lockhart and General Nicholson and rest of the Commander-in-Chief's staff who join the Osprey at Marseilles. Among other passengers by the steamer Sir John Lubbock were Sir John Lubbock and Sir John Lubbock.

Arthur Collins, Sir Louis Kershaw, Robert Home, General Symonds, Mr. W. Ogilvy, Lady Gascolee and Lady Blod. SALES IN THE CHANCEL.
A series of violent sales has been turning the Channel into a Channel of Grief and Doves.

THE VICEROY OF INDIA.
London, Oct. 17.—In a leading, at this morning The Times says that Mr. Elgin has more than justified the viceroyship which he has accepted. Mr. Elgin has manfully confronted all difficulties and has been largely successful.

Aligarh, Oct. 18.—The Times commenting on the Viceroy's speech at the United Service Club Dinner declares the new Viceroy will enjoy the benevolent cooperation of all the British troops fully and completely accomplished in the circumstances so adverse as we are unlikely to recur. The countryman, the leading journalist, has lived perhaps the most brilliant of his life, but we hope that he will spend other spheres for the nation's good, gifts which have won respect and affection in Indian. The society tributes his past to the loyalty of his colleagues, who worked on as a characteristic of generosity.
